ENERGY DEVELOPMENT HAS BECOME INCREASINGLY CONTESTED AT THE LOCAL LEVEL.

While opposition to pipelines is top of mind, energy projects of all kinds (including oil, gas, electricity and renewable) have confronted powerful local opposition in various communities. What is driving these energy conflicts and how do we address them?

This all-day conference brings together energy leaders from the public, private, academic, Indigenous and NGO sectors to address this question. It features the results of cutting-edge research by the University of Ottawa's Positive Energy Project and the Canada West Foundation.

If you are in the business of designing, guiding or shaping energy project decision processes, please join us in Ottawa.
