

AB FACT SHEET

April 2004

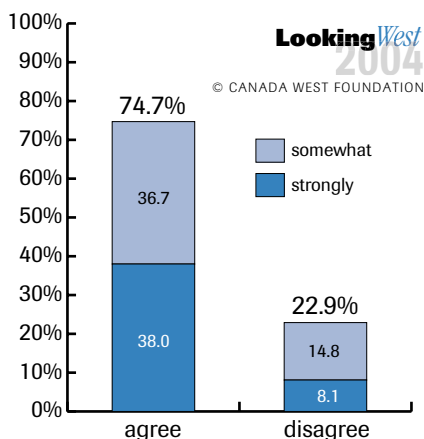

Canada-US Relations

The Looking West 2004 policy priorities data demonstrate that almost five in ten (49.7%) Albertans feel that improving Canada-US relations is a high priority for long-term provincial prosperity and quality of life, while one-third (34.6%) feels it is a medium priority. Less than two in ten feel it is either a low priority (11.8%) or not a priority (3.3%).

To further probe attitudes about the Canada-US relationship, Looking West 2004 survey respondents were asked two questions specific to trade and the economy. First, westerners were asked to rate their agreement with the statement, "Canada should pursue closer economic ties with the United States." Albertans are quite positive in their response to this: three in four agree that stronger ties should be pursued, with over one-third strongly agreeing.

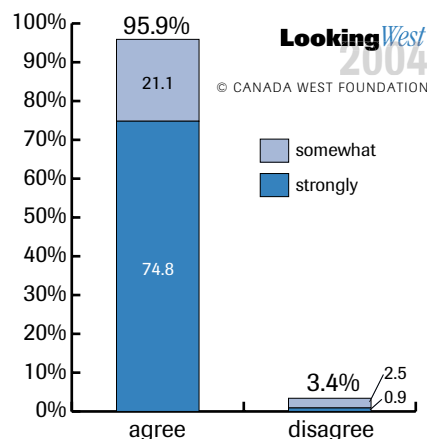

Respondents were also asked to rate their agreement with the statement, "Canada should make every effort to keep the Canada-US border open to Canadian trade." On this point, Albertans are emphatic: 95.9% agree, with three-quarters agreeing strongly.

Figure 1:
Pursue Closer Economic Ties With US –
AB Respondents, 2004

Canada should pursue closer economic ties with the United States.

Figure 2:
Make Every Effort to Keep Border Open to Trade –
AB Respondents, 2004

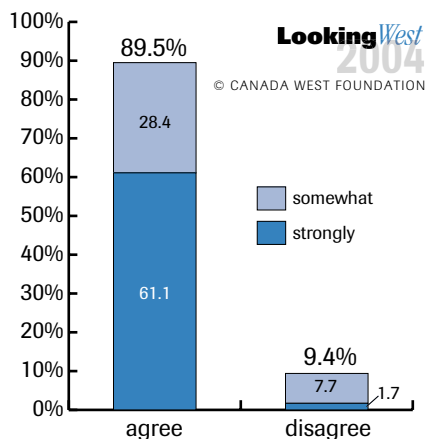

Canada should make every effort to keep the Canada-US border open to Canadian trade.

There has been a lot of debate in recent years about the quality of the Canada-US relationship. To assess attitudes about this, Looking West 2004 respondents were asked to rate their agreement with the statement, "The relationship between Canada and the United States has deteriorated over the past few years." Albertans clearly think that the relationship has suffered: almost nine in ten (89.5%) agree that it has deteriorated, with the majority (61.1%) agreeing strongly.

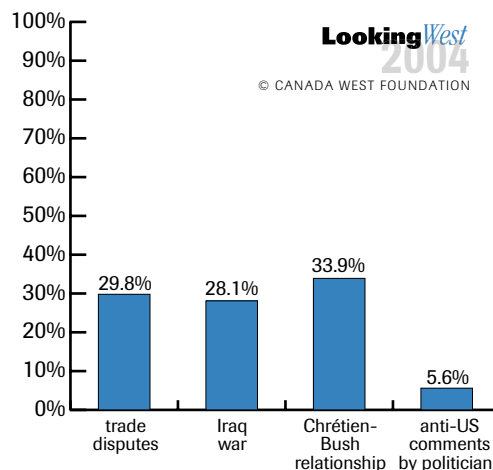

Respondents who agreed (strongly or somewhat) that the Canada-US relationship has deteriorated were asked a follow-up question: "Of the following reasons, which do you feel has most significantly contributed to a deterioration in Canada-US relations over the past few years? Canada-US trade disputes, such as softwood lumber and beef exports; differing positions on the Iraq war; poor personal relationship between Prime Minister Chretien and President Bush; anti-American comments by Canadian politicians." Albertans are clearly divided on the cause of deterioration; while trade disputes is the cause cited by three in ten, another three in ten blame differing positions on the Iraq war and one-third blame the poor personal relationship between former Prime Minister Chretien and President Bush. Only 5% blame anti-American comments by Canadian politicians.

Figure 3:
Canada-US Relationship Has Deteriorated –
AB Respondents, 2004

The relationship between Canada and the United States has deteriorated over the past few years.

Figure 4:
Cause of Deterioration –
AB Respondents, 2004

Asked only of respondents who agreed that the relationship had deteriorated. N = 716

This summary was authored by CWF Director of Research Loleen Berdahl, and is part of the Canada West Foundation's Building the New West Project. The Kahanoff Foundation, Western Diversification, the Privy Council Office, the Government of Saskatchewan, and Alberta International and Intergovernmental Relations provided funding support for this research study. The opinions expressed in this document are those of the author and not necessarily those of the Canada West Foundation's donors, subscribers or Board.